THE thirtieth annual summary by the Department of Agriculture of Federal and other game laws and regulations is here presented for the use of law-enforcement officials, sportsmen, conservationists, and others as an aid in the administration of the migratory-bird treaty and Lacey Acts. The provisions as set forth furnish a brief and convenient synopsis of the laws. Provisions relating to methods of capture, game refuges, enforcement of laws, disposition of fees and fines, and minor matters are omitted, as also are texts of Federal and Canadian laws and regulations relating to birds and game. ### FEDERAL PROTECTION OF GAME

GAME ADMINISTRATION involves more than the mere exercise of police powers for the protection of wild life. Too frequently game laws are considered to have protection as their sole end, the result being that in some States they are so inelastic as to prevent modification to meet changing conditions. Fortunately, a number of States, recognizing the need for more elastic laws, have empowered game officials to develop and execute conservation programs that may be modified as changing conditions warrant.

Among the functions of the United States Department of Agriculture are the conservation of game and the protection of migratory birds. Its jurisdiction was extended to game in 1900 by the passage of the Lacey Act, which supplements State legislation by regulating interstate commerce in wild animals and governs the importation of foreign wild animals and birds. Of most far-reaching importance, however, are the laws that were passed in 1918, authorizing regulations to give effect to the treaty of 1916 between the United States and Great Britain for the protection of North American migratory birds. In the United States and Canada these laws are known, respectively, as the migratory-bird treaty act and the migratory-birds convention act.

The first Federal migratory-bird law of this country was enacted in 1913, and its enforcement was placed in this department, as was also the administration of the subsequent treaty legislation. The act of 1918 has been most effective in coordinating State laws relating to migratory game birds, and is generally observed, and in most places respected. This legislation conferred power on the department to regulate the taking, possession, and disposition of migratory birds. The fundamental principles that underlie the regulations adopted for its enforcement include the abolition of spring shooting, the prohibition of the sale of migratory game birds, and the prescribing of definite, reasonable daily bag limits. Under the terms of the treaty, open seasons in any State are restricted to a period not exceeding three and one-half months in any one year.

Protection by restriction on hunting, however, is only one of several possible means of accomplishing the objects of the international agreement. Its intention can be defeated in spite of such laws if the birds are denied the use of the breeding and resting grounds that they have enjoyed for countless generations. Increased numbers of migratory waterfowl tax the feeding and carrying capacity of their ever-diminishing range and create urgent problems concerned with their maintenance. The present outstanding need of our birds is a series of refuges in their accustomed habitat along the flight lanes of their annual migrations. Sportsmen and conservationists generally, realizing the necessity for a sustained program in connection with the development and maintenance of wild-fowl breeding and feeding areas throughout the country, have been endeavoring to bring about a system of migratory-bird refuges. Such a system was authorized by the migratory-bird conservation act of February 18, 1929, which provides for the appropriation of $7,800,000 over a period of 10 years for the acquisition of Federal refuge sites. The spread of civilization and consequent commercial developments have made serious inroads into the breeding and feeding grounds of all wild life, especially in the comparatively limited areas suitable for migratory wild fowl. Unwise drainage of many marshes and lakes throughout the country also has destroyed large water areas chiefly suitable for the production of wild life, without compensating benefits.

The Bureau of Biological Survey administers 83 game and bird reservations created specifically for the conservation of wild life. All but 1 are bird refuges, and 5 are big-game preserves. One of the most important of these is the Upper Mississippi River Wild Life and Fish Refuge, administered jointly by the Departments of Agriculture and Commerce. This, and the bird refuges at Big Lake, Ark., Malheur and Upper Klamath Lakes, Oreg., and Tule Lake, Calif., are among the few refuges now under Federal control that are important as breeding, feeding, and resting grounds for migratory game birds. Another important refuge for migratory birds was authorized by Congress on April 23, 1928, at Bear River Bay, Great Salt Lake, Utah. Contracts have been let this year for construction work and improvements necessary at this point to correct conditions that have proved so destructive to waterfowl through alkali poisoning during the past decade.

REVIEW OF LEGISLATION OF 1929

In all the States except Alabama, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, and Virginia legislative sessions have been held since the last bulletin on the game laws was issued (Farmers' Bulletin No. 1575). More or less extensive revisions in State game laws were enacted in Arizona, Connecticut, Florida, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

FEDERAL LEGISLATION

AMENDED MIGRATORY-BIRD TREATY-ACT REGULATIONS

Amendments to the migratory-bird treaty-act regulations were approved by the President on April 23, 1929. Seasons were changed on waterfowl, coots, and Wilson's snipe in Illinois and Missouri, where the new season established is September 24 to January 7; in Oklahoma, October 16 to January 31, to harmonize with that established heretofore for the northern part of Texas; and in the State of Washington, east of the summit of the Cascade Mountains, September 16 to December 31.

The season on woodcock was changed in New York to the period October 1 to 31, the same as that provided for Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont. Mourning-dove seasons were changed in Georgia, North Carolina, and two counties in Alabama. Georgia was placed in the group of Southern States having a split season on mourning doves—during the month of September and from November 20 to January 31. In North Carolina the dove season was made to conform with that on quail, rabbits, and wild turkeys from November 20 to January 31, and in Mobile and Baldwin Counties, Ala., a special season on doves was prescribed from November 1 to January 31.

By failure of the regulations to prescribe definite open seasons on greater and lesser yellowlegs, the 2-year close term, which expired August 16, 1929, was continued for an indefinite period. Under existing regulations it is unlawful to hunt shore birds, except woodcock and Wilson's snipe in the States where open season on these species are provided.

Other amendments to the Federal regulations prohibited hunting of migratory game birds from automobiles, restricted the taking of migratory game birds under scientific collecting permits on any day to the period from half an hour before sunrise to sunset, and required taxidermists engaged in receiving and mounting migratory birds to keep accurate records of all transactions affecting such birds. The regulations were further liberalized in the matter of indorsements of applications for scientific permits.

Amendments to the Alaska game regulations, which became effective on July 1, 1929, were adopted by the Secretary of Agriculture after consultation with the Alaska Game Commission and approval by the Biological Survey of the commission's recommendations. In order to accommodate residents in the far northern areas of Alaska and enable them to supply themselves with meat, the restriction on hunting caribou was liberalized so that these animals may now be taken north of the Arctic Circle at any time of year, and south of the circle from August 20 to December 31, instead of from September 1 to December 31, as formerly. On the Alaska Peninsula the seasonal limit on caribou was reduced to two for a resident and one for a nonresident hunter. Residents of the Kodiak-Afognak group of islands are now permitted to kill large brown and grizzly bears at any time of year when considered a menace to persons, livestock, or property.

An area of 22,000 acres east and north of Cordova in the Eyak Lake and Power Creek region was closed to all hunting and trapping in accordance with local sentiment, as more than 300 residents of the region petitioned for the establishment of the refuge.

FEDERAL REFUGES

Refuges created by Executive order.—Four wild-life refuges have been established by Executive orders since the last bulletin on the game laws was issued. Tule Lake Bird Refuge in northeastern Siskiyou County, Calif., created by Executive order of October 4, 1928, comprises 10,300 acres of Government lands within the Klamath irrigation project. These lands are flooded to a considerable extent by waste water and form an excellent waterfowl resort and an extremely valuable resting and feeding ground for the birds that frequent the area. An area of 2,800 acres in the southern portion of the refuge, which has long been used as a recreational area by local sportsmen, was opened by order of the Secretary to shooting during the waterfowl season. The remaining 7,500 acres of the refuge were reserved strictly for sanctuary purposes.

By Executive order of April 15, 1929, Nunivak Island, in Bering Sea, off the west coast of Alaska, was reserved in connection with the work of the Biological Survey in conducting experiments in the crossing and propagation of reindeer and caribou and as a preserve and breeding grounds for native birds and wild game and fur-bearing animals.

The Fort Keogh Bird Refuge was established on the former military reservation near Miles City, Mont., by Executive order of May 18, 1929. It has a total area of 57,000 acres, including a 70-acre artificial lake. The water area is frequented by waterfowl and other migratory birds and the balance of the refuge is inhabited chiefly by sharp-tailed grouse and ring-necked pheasants. Since 1924 this reservation has been under the control of the Bureau of Animal Industry as a range livestock experiment station for the study of stock grazing and the growing of range forage crops. The establishment of the refuge will not interfere with these experiments nor with the use of the artificial lake by the Montana Fish and Game Commission in the production of warm-water fishes, particularly black bass, in cooperation with the United States Bureau of Fisheries.

The Cedar Keys Bird Refuge, off the west coast of Levy County, Fla., established by order of July 16, 1929, comprises the small islands known as Snake Key, Dead Man or Bird Key, and North Key, which are important nesting and wintering grounds for large numbers of aquatic birds, including several species of herons, pelicans, and cormorants, some of which are becoming greatly depleted in numbers.

Migratory-bird refuges.—The approval on February 18, 1929, of the migratory-bird conservation act, marked the culmination of eight years of effort by sportsmen and conservationists throughout the country for establishing a Federal system of migratory-bird refuges along the flight lanes and in the concentration areas of waterfowl and other migratory birds. As finally enacted the law authorizes the creation of inviolate sanctuaries under direct appropriation by Congress over a period of 10 years. The passage of this act was followed by an appropriation of $75,000 to cover the first year's expenses of investigating proposed refuge sites and the formulation of a more definite Federal program for national refuges. The total appropriation authorized during the 10-year period is $7,875,000. The act also affords additional protection to existing reservations and those hereafter established by Executive orders or by special acts of Congress.

The Migratory-Bird Conservation Commission created by the act is composed of the Secretary of Agriculture (chairman), the Secretary of Commerce, the Secretary of the Interior, two Members of the Senate, and two Members of the House of Representatives. The chief game official of the State, or a representative designated by the governor in States having no game department, is also made a member of the commission for the purpose of considering and passing upon areas in his own State. The commission is required to pass upon the advisability of obtaining areas recommended by the Secretary of Agriculture for purchase or lease under the provisions of the law for refuge purposes and to fix the price or prices at which such areas may be purchased or rented.

The act specifically provides that no area in any State may be acquired by the Federal Government for refuge purposes until that State has consented by law to the acquisition of lands by the United States for public purposes within its borders. Notwithstanding the fact that most of the legislatures in the States holding sessions this year were well under way at the time of the enactment of this Federal legislation, no less than nine States—Kansas, Montana, South Dakota, North Carolina, New York, Missouri, California, Florida, and Illinois—enacted special legislation in 1929 consenting to Federal acquisition of areas within their borders for migratory-bird refuge purposes. A careful study of existing State legislation on the subject reveals that 17 States already have granted to the Federal Government sufficient authority to proceed with the acquisition of lands for refuge areas. These States are Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Iowa, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Mexico, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, West Virginia, and Wyoming.

CANADIAN REGULATIONS

The amendments to the Canadian regulations on migratory birds, approved by order in council in July, 1929, continued until 1932 the close season on yellowlegs, plovers, curlews, and all shore birds except woodcock and Wilson's snipe. The daily bag limit on woodcock was reduced from 10 to 8, and a seasonal limit of 125 birds was prescribed for all the Provinces in which woodcock hunting is allowed—New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario, Prince Edward Island, and Quebec. The open season on woodcock for the Grand Manan Islands group and that on Wilson's snipe south of the French and Mattawa Rivers in Ontario were shortened half a month.

In Nova Scotia the general season on waterfowl, rails, coots, and gallinules, except in Cumberland County, was changed to the period October 1 to January 15 from the former season September 15 to December 31. The season on geese and brant was shortened one month in Shelburne, Halifax, and Queens Counties by opening on December 1 instead of November 1.

The use of live decoys was prohibited in hunting band-tailed pigeons in British Columbia.

STATE AND PROVINCIAL LEGISLATION

MIGRATORY GAME BIRDS

State laws were brought into further harmony with the Federal regulations on migratory birds through the adoption of special legislation in Connecticut, New York, and West Virginia. In Connecticut and West Virginia the future amendments to the Federal regulations will automatically become the law of these States, while in New York the conservation department is authorized to adopt regulations making State seasons and bag limits conform with the Federal provisions as they are amended from time to time.

Waterfowl and shore birds.—In West Virginia a definite provision was enacted reducing the daily bag limit on ducks from 25 to 15 and that on geese from 8 to 4. The limit on ducks was also reduced in Arizona from 20 to 15 a day and that on geese and brant from 8 to 2. Iowa reduced the number of waterfowl allowed in possession at one time from 50 to 21. Maine prescribed a limit of 2 a day on Wilson's snipe instead of 10 as formerly. Michigan eliminated the weekly bag limit of 50 on wild ducks but prescribed a season limit of 100, reduced the season limit on geese and brant from 15 to 10, and the possession limit on woodcock from 10 to 8 and the season limit from 20 to 16; the woodcock season was slightly lengthened by opening October 15 instead of October 25. The limits on rails and coots also were reduced in Michigan. In Pennsylvania the board of game commissioners adopted regulations revising the hunting seasons in that State; the season on waterfowl and coots was lengthened two weeks by opening October 1 instead of October 15. Vermont reduced the daily limit on ducks from 20 to 12 and prescribed a season limit of 50. The limit on geese in Vermont was reduced from 8 a day to 5 a season.

Mourning doves.—Arizona reduced the limit on mourning doves from 25 to 20 a day. Nebraska prescribed the first 15 days in September as an open season on doves and established a daily bag and possession limit of 15, the number of game birds of all kinds allowed in possession at one time being reduced from 50 to 40. Texas changed the dove season in the southern zone and adopted a number of local seasons affecting counties in the eastern section of the State in both the north and south zones. Owing to the conflict between the seasons prescribed under this new legislation and those provided by the Federal regulations, the legal season during which mourning doves may be hunted in the areas affected without violating either State or Federal law, hunters will find their dove-shooting privileges somewhat more curtailed than in previous seasons. The details of these changes are too numerous to include here, but may be found in the summary of Texas laws later in the bulletin.

UPLAND GAME BIRDS

Ruffed grouse.—Ruffed grouse generally received additional protection under legislation adopted this year, in the form of close seasons, shortened open seasons, or reduced bag limits. Close seasons were continued or adopted in Illinois, Minnesota, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Vermont, Wisconsin, and Manitoba, and in New Jersey five counties were closed to the hunting of these birds. Daily and seasonal bag limits were reduced in Connecticut from 3 to 2 a day and 21 to 15 a season.

West Virginia reduced the daily limit from 4 to 3 and the season limit from 20 to 15. In Maine the former 2-month open season on ruffed grouse was reduced and hunting limited to the month of October, and the limit was shortened from 5 to 4 a day.

Other grouse.—The season on mountain and willow grouse, prairie chickens, and sage hens was closed for four years in Colorado and that on prairie chickens, or pinnated grouse, for two years in Nebraska. Wisconsin abolished the open season in alternate years on prairie chickens, sharp-tailed grouse, and spruce hens. In Texas the open season on prairie chickens was shortened from the first 10 days to the first 4 days of September. Manitoba continued the close season on prairie chickens, or pinnated grouse.

Other upland game birds.—The close season on wild turkeys was continued in Illinois for two years. Missouri reduced the limit on turkeys from 4 to 1 a season. North Carolina shortened the open season a few days on quail and wild turkeys by fixing the hunting season from November 20 to February 15, instead of the former period from December 1 to March 1. Pennsylvania, by regulation of the board of game commissioners, restricted the upland-game-bird season to the month of November, except on wild turkeys and male ring-necked pheasants, which may now be hunted only during the first half of that month.

BIG GAME

The tendency in this year's legislation was to restrict further the taking of big-game animals. Changes affecting one species or another were made in Florida, Maine, New York, North Carolina, South Dakota, West Virginia, Wyoming, British Columbia, Northwest Territories, Nova Scotia, Ontario, and Yukon.

STATE GAME REFUGES

Particular attention was given to the establishment of State game refuges in a number of the States. California created 4 new refuges, Colorado 2, Idaho 6, and Utah, Minnesota, and New Brunswick 1 each. Utah also adopted a special bill to facilitate the establishment of the Bear River Migratory Bird Refuge in that State. Minnesota enlarged the powers of its game commission in the matter of the acquisition of lands for refuges and public-shooting grounds. Lands and waters heretofore or hereafter inclosed as private game farms are also made permanent wild-fowl refuges. West Virginia provided that 10 per cent of its hunting-license receipts shall be expended in establishing and maintaining game refuges and public-shooting grounds, and that one-third of any area acquired or controlled by the State shall be used for refuge purposes and the other two-thirds for public-shooting grounds. Authority was also continued for the commission to establish refuges on private lands, on areas of not less than 2,000 acres, for 10-year periods.

Woodcock, 4.

No other migratory birds may be taken at any time except under permit for propagating, scientific, or banding purposes, or under an order of the Secretary of Agriculture to prevent injury to agricultural or other interests.

Time of day and methods.—Migratory game birds may be taken from the land and water on any day during the open season from half an hour before sunrise to sunset with a gun not larger than 10 gauge, fired from the shoulder, with the aid of a dog, the use of decoys, and from a blind or floating device other than an automobile, airplane, power boat, sailboat, any boat under sail, or any floating device towed by powerboat or sailboat, or any sinkbox (battery), except that sinkboxes (batteries) may be used in taking waterfowl in coastal sounds and bays (including Back Bay, Princess Anne County, Va.), and other coastal waters; and the use of an airplane or a power boat, sailboat, or other floating device for the purpose of concentrating, driving, rallying, or stirring up migratory waterfowl is prohibited.

Possession.—Migratory game birds legally taken may be possessed during the period constituting the open season where killed and for an additional period of 10 days next succeeding such open season, and those coming from a country other than Canada may be possessed in the State into which they are brought only during the open season in that State and such additional time immediately thereafter as may be permitted by both Federal and State laws.

Interstate traffic in game.—Not more than two days' bag limit of migratory game birds may be exported or removed from the State where taken in any one calendar week, and such migratory game birds or parts thereof in transit during the open season may continue in transit such additional time, not exceeding five days, as may be necessary for delivery at destination.

The Lacey Act prohibits interstate shipment by common carrier of wild animals or parts thereof where such animals have been killed or shipped in violation of the laws of the State in which killed or from which shipped, and section 4 of the treaty act likewise prohibits the removal in any manner from one State to another of any wild birds in violation of State laws or which have been illegally taken. All packages in interstate commerce containing game animals or nonmigratory game birds, or parts thereof, must be marked to show the names and addresses of the consignor and consignee and the nature of the contents, and packages containing migratory birds must be marked with such addresses and the number and kind of such birds therein.

Sale.—The Federal law prohibits the sale of all migratory birds throughout the United States except birds taken for scientific or propagating purposes and waterfowl raised on farms or preserves under permit from the Secretary of Agriculture.<sup>2</sup> Feathers of wild ducks and wild geese lawfully killed, and of such birds seized and condemned by Federal or State authorities, may be purchased and sold for use in the manufacture or fishing flies, pillows, and mattresses, but not for millinery or ornamental purposes.

Alaskan exceptions.—In Alaska, Eskimos and Indians may take for the use of themselves and their immediate families, in any manner and at any time, and possess and transport auks, auklets, guillemots, murre, and puffins and their eggs for food and their skins for clothing.

Permits for propagation and other purposes.—Under appropriate permit from the Secretary of Agriculture, and when allowed by State law, migratory waterfowl may be captured at any time for propagating purposes, and waterfowl bred in captivity may be killed and the carcasses sold and used for food purposes. Waterfowl captured and bred in captivity may also be sold alive for breeding and exhibition purposes to the holders of permits. Under appropriate permit all species of migratory birds, except whooping cranes, trumpeter swans, and Eskimo curlew, may be taken for scientific purposes, and all species may be taken for banding. The Secretary of Agriculture may also issue orders permitting the killing of migratory birds to prevent serious injury to agriculture or other interests.

Further restrictions by States.—The States may shorten the open seasons fixed by Federal regulations on migratory birds, reduce the bag limits, prohibit export, restrict the period during which migratory birds may be possessed in close season, or make other laws or regulations to give further protection to such birds, but may not lengthen the open season, increase the bag limit, permit sale, or otherwise lessen the protection afforded by Federal law.

SUMMARY OF LAWS RELATING TO SEASONS, LICENSES, LIMITS, POSSESSION, INTERSTATE TRANSPORTATION, AND SALE

Game laws and information.—Persons are advised to obtain from State game commissioners the full text of game laws in States where hunting is contemplated. (See list on p. 11, back of title-page.) They should also obtain information from the Bureau of Biological Survey or State game departments<sup>3</sup> regarding the existence of Federal and State game and bird refuges in areas in which they contemplate hunting, as the location of refuges and the restrictions regarding hunting thereon are not included in this bulletin.

Open season dates.—The dates of open seasons for migratory game birds shown under the various States and Provinces are the times when these birds may be hunted without violating either State or Provincial laws or Federal or Canadian regulations.

In stating the open season<sup>4</sup> the plan has been followed of including the first and last days thereof. The difficulty of attaining absolute accuracy in a statement of the seasons is great, but summaries have been submitted to the proper State or provincial game officials for correction and approval, and the dates as stated are believed to be free from material errors.

<sup>3</sup> See list on page 11 (back of title-page). A full list of names and addresses of officials and organizations concerned with the protection of birds and game will be found in Misc. Pub. No. 57, U. S. Dept. Agr., 1929.

Permanent close seasons.—Species (including migratory game<sup>5</sup> and nongame<sup>5</sup> birds—but not migratory insectivorous<sup>6</sup> birds—protected throughout each year by Federal regulations) on which the season is closed for a term of years or for an indefinite period are grouped under the term “No open season.” Provisions of State laws prohibiting hunting at night, between sunset and sunrise, or during certain hours are not included.

Rest days.—In some States certain days of the week constitute rest days or close seasons during the time when hunting is permitted. Hunting on Sunday is prohibited in all States and Provinces east of the one-hundred and fifth meridian, except Illinois, Louisiana, Michigan, Rhode Island, Texas, Wisconsin, and Quebec. Mondays constitute a close season for waterfowl locally in California and North Carolina; Wednesdays for ducks in Wisconsin; and certain other week days for waterfowl in several favorite ducking grounds in California, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and Florida. In Oregon mountain and valley quail, Hungarian partridges, and Chinese pheasants may be hunted locally only on Wednesday and Sunday of each week during the open season. In Oklahoma quail may be hunted only on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of each week during the open season, and on Thanksgiving Day and Christmas and New Year's Day, or the preceding Saturdays, if these fall on Sundays. Hunting is prohibited when snow is on the ground in New Jersey, Delaware, and Virginia, and locally on all game except waterfowl in Maryland.

Possession.—The provision of the Federal regulations permitting the possession of migratory game birds during the first 10 days of the close season has been considered in connection with State laws, and when migratory game birds may be possessed during any part of the close season without violating either the Federal regulations or State laws it has been stated under the heading “Bag limits and possession.”

Possession of nonmigratory game during the close season is generally prohibited by State laws, but when an extension of a few days, or a special season, is provided for either possession or sale, attention is called thereto.

Interstate transportation.—Under the heading “Interstate transportation,” in addition to statements of restrictions on removal of game from the State in which it is taken, information has been included concerning the importation and possession by sportsmen for personal use of game legally killed outside the State and legally exported from the place where taken. In the absence of specific State legislation to the contrary, or where legislation prohibits possession of game in close season, it has been construed that sportsmen may bring home their game and possess it in their State in the same manner as if it had been killed there.

Propagated and imported game.—For laws concerning traffic in imported game and game raised in captivity under Federal and State licenses, see pages 43 to 46.

CANADA

The migratory-birds convention act of August 29, 1917, as amended in 1919, 1921, and 1925, and the regulations thereunder promulgated by the Governor General in council, are similar to the migratory-bird treaty act and regulations in that they give effect to and conform with the provisions of the treaty between the United States and Great Britain for the protection of migratory birds in the United States and Canada. Full text of the regulations, as amended, will be found in a publication issued annually by the Commissioner of National Parks of Canada, Ottawa.

Canada also has a general law prohibiting export of deer carcasses or parts thereof (except as to cured deer heads and hides of deer and except carcasses and parts of deer raised on private preserves); and wild turkey, quail, partridge, prairie fowl, and woodcock; but subject to Provincial laws and under a permit from the collector of customs a nonresident licensee, on not more than two occasions during one calendar year, may export, during the open season in the Province where killed and within 15 days thereafter, not more than the whole or parts of 1 moose and 3 deer not being moose, legally shot by him for sport and not for gain or hire; provided, however, that a nonresident licensee may export from Yukon Territory in one year the hides and heads of not more than 2 moose, 4 caribou, and 4 deer not being moose or caribou. Such licensee, at any port of export, may make an export entry in duplicate of such deer or part thereof upon subscribing before the collector or other officer of customs a declaration to be annexed to said export entry, producing his license or permit for shooting the deer to the collector or other officer of customs, who shall indorse thereon a description of the quantity and parts entered for exportation, and thereupon, if satisfied as to the identity of the sportsman and that the exportation is not prohibited, may issue his permit under the seal of the customhouse for the export of the deer or parts thereof, which permit must accompany the shipment. The ports of export are Halifax and Yarmouth, Nova Scotia; McAdam Junction, St. John, and St. Stephen, New Brunswick; Montreal, Quebec, Sherbrooke, Beebe Junction, and St. Armand, Quebec; Bridgeburg, Brockville, Kingston, Ottawa, Port Arthur, Prescott, Niagara Falls, Sarnia, Sault Ste. ## IMPORTED GAME AND GAME RAISED IN CAPTIVITY

The Department of Agriculture, acting in conjunction with State game officials and sportsmen, aids so far as possible in establishing the game-breeding industry by preparing drafts of suitable laws to be enacted by the States, issuing permits to breeders to obtain wild migratory waterfowl and their eggs, and otherwise advising where stock may be obtained. The department does not distribute breeding stock or eggs, but in proper cases and under suitable restrictions issues permits to assist legitimate enterprises in the conduct of the business of game farming. The possession, sale, and transportation of imported game and game raised in captivity is also regulated in most States by State laws, which are covered in the following summary:

Federal regulations:<sup>17</sup> Under permit from the Secretary of Agriculture, and subject to the provisions of State laws, live migratory waterfowl raised in captivity may be possessed, sold, and transported at any time for propagation, and such birds may be killed in any manner (except that they may be killed by shooting only during the open season for waterfowl in the State where killed) and carcasses with heads and feet attached may be sold and transported at any time to any person for actual consumption, or to the keeper of a hotel, restaurant, or boarding house, retail dealer in meat or game, or a club, for sale or service to their patrons who may possess such carcasses for actual consumption without a Federal permit; provided that no migratory waterfowl killed by shooting shall be bought or sold unless each bird before attaining the age of 4 weeks shall have had removed from the web of one foot a portion thereof in the form of a V for identification purposes.

Permits also are issued under proper restrictions and subject to State laws for capturing a reasonable number of wild migratory waterfowl and taking their eggs to enable persons desiring to engage in the business to acquire the nucleus of a breeding stock or to improve the strain of birds on hand, but such wild birds may be sold and possessed only for propagation and may not be killed or sold for food.
